

Summary of Research Program:

My program focuses on a genetics first approach to improving our understanding of autism spectrum disorder and combines my interest in neurophysiology of social cognition to identify biomarkers for genetically defined subtypes in autism. I primarily focus on the application of EEG to understanding neurological substrates of social cognition and combine with behavioral assessment across a range of functioning for children and adults with neurodevelopmental disorders.

Raphael Bernier, PhD

Lab Website

Faculty Profile